

Raw Natural Dog Food

The term natural dog food is very confusing as we don't have any strong definition of word "natural". The question is that does "natural" means we can't add anything to the dog food, or it means that food product is strictly organically grown. We don't even have exact definition of organic. There are a lot more other questions like, is a natural dog food can contain added substances like flavor enhancer etc?. Dictionary also offers number of definitions of word "natural", which one is most authentic, nobody is sure. In such a situation, it is wise to rely on our own common sense. Perhaps the natural dog food is the food a dog eats in the natural environment, or it is simply the food that does not have any harmful ingredient.

Vets are now agreed on the issue that processed dog food shouldn't be used, as it causes illness and premature deaths in dogs. It is come to known by research that processed dog food blocks the immune system and causes dysfunction of liver, heart and kidney. Raw dog food and organic food are two most popular foods among dogs owners. You can attribute these foods as natural dog food because it consists of healthy protein molecules which are necessary for dogs to digest food.

Natural dog food is good for dogs brain, and it gives him cellular energy. The power gained from the food works to repair tissues, organs and cells. There are so many other functions within dogs body that start functioning properly with this food.

The natural dog food should be well designed and equalized. In simple words, be very careful to select the food ingredients. Bear in mind that the food should contain all the nutritional components which are essential for dogs organs and systems. A balanced diet will help the dog to fight against diseases and aid him in the healing process.

Essential enzymes should also be a part of natural dog food. Natural dog food has advantage over processed dog food in a way that in processed dog food the enzymes die because of processing the food in heat, while it remains alive in natural dog food. Digestive enzymes should be a part of dogs food because it speeds up digestion process.

Natural dog food is made by combining different foods like: meaty bones, pulpy vegetables, fruits, garlic, yogurt, raw eggs, and raw organ meats of liver, heart, kidney etc. Your dog food must also have added supplements like: fish body oil, olive oil, cod liver oil, flax seed oil, or ground flax seed meal, to have essential fatty acids. In addition, natural dog food should also contain Vitamin B, C & E supplements in the form of kelp powder or brewers yeast.

About the Author

Find more information on best dog food, review dogfoodcouponsnow.blogspot.com.

Source: <http://learnitarticles.com>